

What people are saying

"Sure to be a bestseller. Dawson has hit all the right notes with this one. It's got the action, the mystery, and some great surprises; all in the right proportions."

Donald Truman, The  Guide to Great Mysteries

"One of the best books of its genre of the year. Totally engaging from start to finish, I didn't put it down from LA to New York. Bravo!"

Julia Ross, The Last Shot

Book Signing

Selling books is not a passive occupation. Readers need to be involved with the book and the person who wrote it. Catherine Dawson is an active and hands on writer. She loves to meet her

About the Book

All the Wrong Words introduces Catherine's newest and youngest detective, Jonathan Ellerman. Jonathan's mother, Louise is a great mom and Jon's best friend. He can't say the same for his father.

Dillon Ellerman is an abusive husband. He describes Louise as a "nobody housewife with a nobody life with absolutely nothing to offer." That includes the child she now carries, a child he does not want.
